Confidentiality

Students have the right to expect that all aspects of their healthcare will be treated as confidential. Access to student medical records is limited to the Wellness Center staff and medical personnel involved in the student's care. Personal medical records may be released as directed, with written consent by the student.

In the case of potentially life threatening emergencies or rare instances of imminent risk of harm to self or others, pertinent medical information is shared with emergency care providers and the dean.

Class Excuses

The Wellness Center does not provide students written excuses for class absences due to routine illness or injury. Students are responsible for notifying their professors and/or employers if they are absent from class or work. The student must make plans with their professors to complete missed assignments.

Under certain circumstances, the Wellness Center will write a class excuse and notify the dean's staff. The dean's staff will then notify the student's professors. This usually happens when the student has a contagious illness, a serious injury, or is hospitalized.
